THE NEED

Imani students are challenged by violence, gangs, bullying, substance abuse, family dysfunction and/or trauma, negative peer influences, low academic expectations and low self-esteem.

They have experienced neglect and they have watched as others in their community fail to free themselves from a cycle of trans-generational poverty. Without Imani's intervention, many of our students might become negative statistics.

Imani focuses on the fact that each student is filled with promise and potential despite their background, resources and social inheritance. Imani focuses on the fact that education remains the single most powerful tool devised to combat poverty.
